young life, his wise words should be heard.

POWs were forced to trek through a vicious winter westwards across Poland. Mr Waite gave up five years of his freedom that day in May 1940 and didn't return to his family until April and May 1945. In May of that year, the first transport of prisoners to the Ravensbrück concentration camp was arrested by the British intelligence. After the stalag was evacuated in early 1945, he was marched across the border into Soviet-held Poland. His life wasted in a prison of war.
